Telegrams from Berlin announce that the Emperor William, in reply to a deputation, has declared that Germany is determined to remain at peace with all foreign powers.

THE CHILIAN QUESTION.

That nations have a right to make war is as incontestable as that the people have a right to their sympathies. In the Franco-Prussian war there were many sympathies on either side, but in Great Britain the balance of public sympathy was certainly in favor of France; nevertheless the English Government and English people always remembered the international duties to be fulfilled, and looked on in silence at the struggle, only caring to protect their own interests. The result of the war was indeed severe on France, but she soon raised herself from extreme depression, and France is now, as she was before, one of the foremost nations of the earth, spite of the loss of two provinces and the immense increase of her National Debt.

Let us suppose now that Chile proves victorious in the West Coast war, and we apprehend there can be very little doubt on this matter, it does not follow that Peru and Bolivia are, therefore, annihilated, although they have to make sacrifices to obtain peace, but, learning from past misfortunes, they may the better reorganize themselves and become again important elements in the equilibrium of South America. We require in Buenos Ayres now the prudence of Englishmen during the French war, and even those who sympathize with Peru in the struggle should remember that increased territory to Chile will not prove an unmixed benefit, or compensate her for the many sacrifices she has made, or fill the vacuum that has been created in her treasury.

In the consideration of this subject much wisdom may be derived from a glance at the relative positions of France and Prussia. The former is a highly prosperous country, whilst Germany complains of poverty, and her resources, men and treasure are taxed to their utmost to maintain the position she has assumed. It does not follow, therefore, that the triumph of Chile is a misfortune to the Argentine nation. On the contrary, Argentines should congratulate themselves on having steered clear of the contest, thus enabling the Government to concentrate its energies to the development of this magnificent country.

Our sympathies for the unfortunate should never compromise the interests of the nation or carry us away to the regions of political error. In commercial life it is frequently our lot to see friends struck down around us, but no one thinks of sacrificing his own fortune to raise the money. We see that the fate of our friends is inevitable and we confine our endeavors to help them up after the blow of misfortune has passed, 'Salus populi suprema lex.'

We must first look to our own interests. Nothing in our position regards Chile is more stringent now than it was a year ago. Chile has shown a disposition to meet us on fair grounds respecting the Patagonian Question. We believe she is still disposed to do so, and we must have confidence in the wisdom of our rulers to bring the differences between the two Governments to a satisfactory termination.

THE PRINCES' VISIT.

So much interest has been taken in the visit of the Princes that we are glad to be able to furnish our readers with an exact and accurate statement of their movements. They landed privately at the Catalinas mole at half past ten on the morning of the 31st inst., the British Minister alone going to meet them on board H.M.S. Elk and accompanying them on shore.

A special train under the personal charge of Mr H. Crabtree was waiting to receive them and conveyed them at once to Sir H. Rumbold's residence, where their Royal Highnesses, their Governor Mr Dalton, and Lord Francis Osborne, of the Bacchante, took up their quarters.

The rest of the party, consisting of His Serene Highness Prince Louis of Battenberg, Lord Charles Scott, the Honbl. Edmund Monson, H.M. Minister at Montevideo and Dr Turnbull were lodged at the charming quinta of M. Oostendorp, which that gentleman had most obligingly placed at the disposal of Sir H. Rumbold. After luncheon the whole party went into town by the ordinary 3 o'clock train. The private carriage which His Excellency the President had kindly lent the Princes during their stay, was in waiting with other carriages at the Estacion Central and conveyed the party to the Nat. Museum, the most interesting contents of which were shown and explained by Prof. Burmeister himself. From the Museum the Princes took a stroll through the principal streets of the town, and at 5 o'clock drove out with Prince Louis of Battenberg and Sir Horace Rumbold to pay a private and entirely unofficial visit to His Excellency General Roca at his country house at Caballito.

It may be mentioned that the Princes did not, as has been stated, visit the Church of Santo Domingo. At half-past seven o'clock they dined with Sir H. Rumbold, who had asked to meet them, the directors and managers of the English Railway Companies and of the London and River Plate Bank, a compliment paid to the representatives of those important British undertakings which have been so highly beneficial to this country.

The heavy rain that ushered in the New Year prevented the Princes from stirring out of the house during the forenoon. At half-past one they drove down to the Cricket ground at Palermo, and lunched with the members of the Club.

A 'special' composed of the Great Southern Railway's carriages, decorated with the Royal arms, picked them up at 3 o'clock and conveyed them over the Northern and Ensenada lines to the station at Barracas, where Mr George Cooper took charge of the train.

At the Central Station some of the leading British residents had assembled to see their Royal Highnesses go by, and gave them a ringing British cheer as they moved on.

By 7 o'clock they reached the station at Villa Nueva, where Mr Shennan was in waiting to receive his illustrious guests. They were driven over to his hospitable residence of Negrete, where they spent the Sunday, Monday and forenoon of Tuesday.

Mr Shennan was able to show them the various aspects of 'camp' life in this country to the best possible advantage. He also afforded them some excellent wild duck shooting on a large 'laguna' at some distance from his house. Both with gun in hand, as well as in the saddle, the Princes showed themselves thoroughly at home in the Pampas.

On Tuesday afternoon another special train conveyed them rapidly back to Belgrano, which was reached in time for dinner.

At half past ten they went by train into town to the magnificent ball ostensibly given to the Squadron but in reality well understood to be an expression of the loyalty to their Queen of the British community in this city. Of this most successful entertainment we have already given our readers so full an account that we have nothing more to say beyond the interesting and not unimportant fact that the two visits paid in the course of the evening by His Excellency the President to the box set apart for their Royal Highnesses were made in return for the visit made by them to His Excellency at Caballito. We learn that General Roca was most desirous to conform with the usual etiquette which requires that such visits should be returned within a few hours, and that it was only owing to representations respecting the strictness of their Royal Highnesses' incognito, that he was deterred from making a more formal visit.

The morning of the day after the ball was spent quietly by the Princes at Belgrano. At two o'clock they came into town by the tramway and, after a little shopping, they quietly walked down to the Catalinas Mole, where they embarked expressing a regret that their stay—which they so much enjoyed—had been so short.

STATE OF IRELAND.

INTERESTING LETTER

Nov. 23, 1880.

A correspondent sends us the following extract from the letter of an agent in Ireland, giving a description of the results of the land agitation in a county which is by no means one of the worst counties at present—

"Last Monday I started from A. for B. about ten miles off. About half-way a respectable dressed man on a horse stopped me to ask if it was true that an agent had been shot the night before in A. I said 'No,' but the question was asked just as if he had asked had I met a cow wandering down the road—a thing of every day occurrence. I reached B. about 11 a.m., when the bailiff met me and said that he did not think any of the tenants would pay, as they were resolved not to offer more than Griffith's valuation, which is about 40 per cent less than their rents, and he (the bailiff) had been told he would be 'done for' if he came again with notices from me. I sat in my office until after three o'clock before a single tenant came in, for though I saw groups of them standing in the street and passing up and down, and though I sent out word to ask them to come in, they would not. At length, when nearly dark, they came, saying that they would not come in one by one, as the custom used to be. So they all crowded in together until the room was quite full, all keeping their hats on, though I was sitting at the table with my hat off (but times are changed), and all clamouring at the same time, saying, 'Griffith's valuation! I should have mentioned to you that I had been at B. last May to collect the half-year due November, 1879, but all the tenants came saying that they could not pay on account of the bad season, &c., but that if I would be satisfied to come only once a year, in November, they would then pay me the year's rent due the previous May willingly and honestly. Well, I then spent a cou-

The R.M.S. Tamar did not go yesterday. She will sail this tomorrow. It was a delightful day, with tropical showers, cool as a cucumber, and a delicious change from the parboiling heat of Sunday. The weather we have had since summer began is superb for the camp, though some wheat may be spoiled. We hear from a Banda Oriental friend that the camps on that side of the river are 'no great shakes,' and in some places are decidedly lousy.

We are enabled to give our readers to-day an exact account of the movements of their Royal Highnesses Princes Albert Victor and George of Wales during their recent visit to this city. It will be seen that, in spite of the Clerk of the Weather doing his best to mar their pleasure, their Royal Highnesses had a fairly pleasant time of it.

Mr Thomas Dodds, the well-known surveyor, starts on the 16th inst. for Bahia Blanca to measure the properties of Messrs. Moore, Goodhall, Bell, Garriz, Bordea, Villanueva, MacKinlay, Boote and Niven and others. Any persons having land in that district should avail themselves of Mr Dodd's services.

The Times proposes that the Turkish question be settled by the arbitration of the Great Powers; but the Paris papers say this would not be fair, even if the contending States should agree to it, as none of the Great Powers are uninterested in the matter, and therefore it would

We had the pleasure of a visit yesterday from Mr Jardine, who has just arrived from England in the yawl Falcon, of the Royal Southampton Yacht Club, 18 tons register, 30 yacht measurement, in company with Mr Knight, of the English Bar, owner of the vessel, M. Arnaud of Paris and a crew of showing her heels, 'on a wind,' several times to Australian clippers and other 'big uns,' promising to report them in port, to their great disgust at the pigmy's presumption. The Falcon will come up to the Tigre in a few days and then run up to Asunción. When she returns she has a long cruise before her—to Chupatze, the Straits, Valparaiso, the South Pacific Isles, Japan, China, India, and the East Indies, and home by the Suez Canal, than the round-the-earth trip taking about 21 months and 10 years in all. The voyage out was a very jolly one. Mr. Knight, the owner, was "the Admiral." Mr. Jadin, the surgeon, was out here some years ago, was the skipper and navigating officer, while Mr. Arney was first officer, and Mr. Thruway was water-bearer. They were all first-rate fellows, about, and it was a pretty fine voyage. We feel much pleasure in saluting the three intrepid travellers on their arrival in the Plate. We understand that Mr. Knight intends publishing an account of his voyage round the world. We hope our talented visitors will remain here long enough to take a good look at this country and aid us to impress its advantages on the emigrating classes at home.

A Pandanú chemist has discovered that Kerosene, Colza, or any other illuminating oil whatever is mere rubbish compared with the oil to be got out of mashed Locusts, which gives a light very little inferior to the Electric candle. Here's a novelty! We hope this discovery will not lead to us getting Locust oil wherewith to season our salad, but we fear it is not unlikely. Modern stomachs and modern society can digest anything, material or moral.

An English resident in Asuncion writes that the Paraguayan Congress is about to vote a respectable sum to foment immigration. Paraguay must offer very liberal terms to induce European emigrants to pass this country by. It is also stated that a National Bank is to be started, a very dangerous financial toy in the hands of insolvent Governments.

The San Juan papers report an edifying case in which a miscreant offered a man 100 patacons to murder his father. The man informed the police, and the parricide was frustrated.

Only one cadet was 'spun' at the recent examinations in the Naval School. The future Browns of the Republic are now enjoying vacation.

The Royal Mail on Saturday next may be termed the Valentine's Mail, as its arrival in England will just be in time for that celebrated day. Jacobsen and Co. are already to the fore with beautiful valentines saying some very touching words of love, which many a young man will like to send as a pleasing reminder to the girl he left behind him.

Soon after the appearance of the notorious song, 'We don't want to fight, but by Jingo if we do,' &c., it was reported in some of the papers that Her Majesty had, through General Ponsonby, publicly accorded her patronage to the ditty. In a recent article on 'The Death of Jingoism' in the Broad Arrow, the journal, in the Broad Arrow, a condition of Jingoism, in spite of the "invaluable advertisement obtained from Her Majesty" for the anthem of the party. This article was reprinted in a New Movement Herald of Peace in 1890, and the journal coming into the hands of General Ponsonby the latter wrote to the Peace Society inquiring the authority for the article alluded to. In reply he was informed that the article was inserted entirely on the authority of the Broad Arrow, but it was added that the Peace Society was also under the same impression as the Broad Arrow, and the general public, that Her Majesty had expressed her patronage of the song in question. In a letter, received by the Peace Society from General Ponsonby he remarked that "the cer-

The Ferrando Family take their benefit to-night at the Politeama, and those fond of strong sensations ought to go. Fancy a man flying from one trapeze to another, across the theatre, blindfolded!! The heart contracts in even thinking of it. The Ferrando family are amongst the

The gold market opened at 25.25 dlan and closed at 25.25. The sales for the day amounted to $119,900. The sales for the end of the month were very heavy, amounting to $58,000, and prices for that date dropped away 16 cts., owing to the numbers of large sellers offering. Some brokers state that parties who bought at the opening prices would make splendid profits, but all the gold offering cannot be sold even on time. The sales of the day amounted to 1,129,900. Cedula advanced slightly, and it was rumored that a large lot of notes sold by the bank, necessitating the sale of the stock of the Argentine Nat. Bank shares rule a shade firmer, but the losses in this stock are very severe and we heard of the stoppage of an Argentine broker, which is attributed to losses in this stock.

Bonos Provinciales firm at their old quotation.

There was a great anxiety to hear from Lima, but nothing fresh came. Parties in London are also so anxious that a £50 telegram was received from London to-day, asking for news. The Peruvian army is strongly on the march at Chorrillos, and a great battle is looked for in that quarter. Lima is defended by 100,000 men and 1,000 dynamite mines. — Mr Napp, the leading hide broker, who has just returned from Europe, was enveloped in friends when he entered the Bolsa; he says that when in London he saw Parnell, and that there was great excitement about the Irish question. The only news from Ireland, however, will be found in another column in a telegram from London.

Mr Nash took leave of his numerous friends and sailed to-morrow in Leibnitz. Merchants and brokers hope that he will keep the country well supplied with the very best English blood stock.

Mr Goyo Soler, who has arrived up from Azul, told the Bolsa all about the great conflagration down there. It was the talk of the week. He said that 15,000 or 20,000 arrobes of wool burnt, but he believed all covered.

The Bank discounted but made trifles to day. The Exchange Committee was named as yet mentioned in our last.
